Treva's
Recipe Box
 by Treva Flemming

My Power XL grill worked really well. I did bone in chicken on the grill and it took about an hour but it was still kinda frozen when I put it on the grill. It did a super job. The chicken was moist and tasted good. I used dark meat chicken for John then I put on some boneless chicken breast for me and it was just as good.

This week I'm going to share with you a recipe from back in the day. Does anyone remember the Dutch Mill Restaurant in Bluffton? I have a recipe that was supposed to be from there that was there Sugar Cream Pie. Now I have not made this myself so we're going on a whim. But I have made a pecan cream pie that tasted just like theirs. It is delicious. So maybe another time I will share the pecan cream pie but for now we will do sugar cream pie, a true Hoosier favorite, mine too.

Dutch Mill Sugar Cream Pie

- | | |
|------------------------|--------------------------|
| 1/2c. brown sugar | 2c. heavy shipping cream |
| 1/2c. white sugar | 1/2 tsp vanilla |
| 1/2c. flour, not level | pinch of salt |
| 1c. milk | 1/2 tsp cinnamon |

Combine sugar and flour mix well. Add salt milk and beat till foamy.

Fold in heavy whipping cream and vanilla. Pour into unbaked pie shell and sprinkle with cinnamon on top

Bake at 400 degrees still set.

If someone makes this let me know how it is. Living with a diabetic you tend to try not to make a lot of the Good stuff and I sure don't need it all. Have a great week, sounds like my life will be changing a little so cant wait to see how it goes.

The "So You've Inherited a Farm, Now What?" program will help farm families begin to prepare for transferring land to the next generation and hammer home the importance of communication and family cohesiveness.

The workshop will explore the following:

- Property options and financial implications
- Land management
- Legal aspects
- Lease considerations
- Strategies for dealing with family and communication issues

The Purdue Extension Land Lease Team invites those who have inherited or might inherit farmland soon to attend "So You've Inherited a Farm, Now What?" FOR YOUR HEALTH

Head Master Rodney L Howard I watched a TV show the other night, where a guy with a knife went after a girl.

Another lady saw what was going to happen and picked up a broom handle and started at him. Now most of you would call that a bo staff, that is saying staff twice. Bo is the Japanese word for staff. You wouldn't say staff staff or stick stick or knife knife you just call it one time. Because of the Americans they have double named it bo staff. She started hitting him with the bo and was doing quite well, all at once the guy with the knife got in a good strike and broke the bo.

Now most people would have given up at that point, she didn't, she spun one of the broken halves around in her hand to where she had two sticks one in each hand most of it above her thumb. She whacked him about four times on the head, shoulder, stomach and leg alternating sides. The guy was laying on the ground screaming for his Mama. That is what we're talking about being able to do with martial arts training, but you don't get to that point overnight or for that matter in the next year.

You ask why there's a whole different length to a bo then there is to kali sticks is. What the kali sticks are there's a whole different distance between kicking and punching and elbowing a lot to learn that's why a master has spent most of his adult life learning.

Now I'm into Martial Arts, are you into art music or writing whatever? Are you practicing your art all the time and are you moving forward in it or do you just hope you can use it when the time comes? When was the last time you sat down with a pencil and paper and drew?

Nobody does it anymore, with a piece of paper because it's all done on phones now or wrote a little article about something you're passionate about. When was the last time you played music on that instrument setting over in the corner. That you haven't played since you left high school, that's what I'm asking you.

I'm giving you an opportunity not only to practice martial arts but to stay active physically and mentally for the rest of your life. Come join me on Monday nights at six o'clock at Solid Rock United Methodist in Warren, Indiana.
