WHAT MAKES AMERICA GREAT

by Bryan Golden

In less than 200 years, America grew from a handful of colonies to become the greatest nation in history. In a few hundred years, we surpassed nations that were many times older. What makes America great?

The two main elements that make America great are our people and our freedoms. Our people have a can do, nothing is impossible, spirit. Starting with the American Revolution, we have always conquered adversity, often in the face of overwhelming odds.

We have more rights and freedoms than anywhere else in the world. Our freedoms are considered inalienable rights, not privileges granted by government. Our freedoms are the envy of the world. Every item in the Bill of Rights is a precious jewel designed to ensure the immortality of our liberty.

Our founders came from societies where government controlled its citizens. They had a solid understanding of the consequences of unchecked power. Our constitution was crafted specifically to limit the scope of government to prevent its infringing on individual liberties.

Our constitution is a brilliant document, filled with foresight and understanding, that has withstood the test of time. The principles embedded in the constitution are the foundation of our greatness. In America, each citizen can control his or her destiny without fear of interference by government or others. Our government was formed to serve the people rather than vice versa. Our government

Across the road from the Ice Cream Stop, where Raymond Schultz lived, was a filling station operated by Enoch Stourt. Dr. Mack Bonifield was

On the other side of the river were the Salamonie Mill and the Riverside Service Station. On the north end of town, where the Telephone Office is now, Glen Riggs operated a filling station. George Cook and his Son, Guy, operated the Cook and Son "East End" Grocery. Gus Beavans operated a filling station where Ackley Automotive is now. HONOR INDEPENDENCE

Community members nationwide can pledge their allegiance to others in need - volunteer to give blood and help save lives this Fourth of July.

"Your blood donation is a sign of independence in its purest sense," said Sharyn Whitman, CEO for the Indiana-Ohio Blood Services Region of the American Red Cross. "When you think of it, you're giving of yourself so someone sick or injured may have the ability to be with people they love."

Giving blood around July 4th helps strengthen America's blood supply during the heart of summer. Blood donations typically decrease in July and around traditional vacation times as some donors focus on summer activities and may overlook donating blood.

Every two seconds, someone in America needs blood. Sick and injured adults and children need red cells, platelets or plasma for scheduled and emergency surgeries, for the treatment of diseases like cancer, and for care related to accidents and trauma. Someone injured in a serious accident may need up to 100 pints of blood to help save their life.

"Your blood donation helps ensure that hospital patients have the blood they need when they need it," said Whitman, "What greater gift of independence can you give than the gift of life?"

How to Donate Blood

To schedule an appointment to donate please call 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767) or visit redcrossblood.org for more information. Individuals who are 17 years of age (16 with parental permission in some states), meet weight and height requirements (110 pounds or more, depending on their height) and are in generally

FREE TREATMENTS

State health officials are urging eligible women to apply for the state's program offering access to free treatment for breast or cervical cancer. In 2007, there were 3,892 women diagnosed with breast cancer and 236 diagnosed with cervical cancer in Indiana.

To qualify for this program, women must:

- * Need treatment for breast or cervical cancer;
- * Reside in Indiana;
- * Be under the age of 65;
- * Have a family income less than 200 percent of the federal poverty level; and
- * Have no credible health insurance.

"Women who are diagnosed with breast or cervical cancer are already facing an incredible challenging time for them and their families," said Erin Triplett, director of the Breast and Cervical Cancer Program at the Indiana State Department of Health. "The last thing we want them to have to worry about during this difficult time is if they can afford to be treated."

The Indiana General Assembly passed legislation in 2009 that extended Medicaid coverage to eligible women aged 18 to 64 who have been diagnosed with breast or cervical cancer. Since the law went into effect on July 1, 2009, the program has helped 73 women receive treatment for breast or cervical cancer.

Women who believe they may be eligible are encouraged to apply for the program by calling the Indiana Family Helpline at 1-800-433-0746.

The Breast and Cervical Cancer Program also receives both federal and state funds to help uninsured and underinsured women aged 40 to 64 gain access to screening services for the early detection of breast and cervical cancer. For more information on cancer screenings, visit www.in.gov/isdh/19851.htm or call 1-800-433-0746.

"Regular screening examinations by a health care professional can result in the detection and removal of precancerous growths, as well as the diagnosis of cancers at an early stage, when they are most treatable," said Triplett. "Cancers that can be prevented or detected earlier by screening account for at least half of all new cancer cases."

JULY, THE PATRIOTIC MONTH

by V Neil Wyrick

Try to imagine Ben Franklin and fifty-five other Founding Fathers sweltering in Independence Hall in Philadelphia in 125 degree heat. It was July but the real reason it was so hot inside the hall was that all the doors and windows were shut as tight as a drum. They rightly realized that in order to accomplish the job set before them, there must be no leaks for either press or gossipers to spread far and wide. Thank goodness they were equal to the task of putting together a Declaration of Independence that has become a model for all the world to follow.

It certainly was not a lack of courage that led these men to chose to become a part of this group so revered down through the years. Five, branded as traitors, were captured by the British forces. Five others watched their homes stripped bare and then burned to the ground. The sons of two of them paid the ultimate sacrifice. Nine died of wounds sustained in battle or from the hardships of war itself.

Many of them inherited poverty and loss of property for their trouble. They were always on the run, looking over their shoulders. Sure that what they had done was right; unsure of the final victory that did gloriously come to pass. But then, it could not have come as any surprise. Voluntarily they had put their heads and hearts on the line. Voluntarily they were resolute to the end.

They were a diverse group. Eleven brought to the signing table skills as merchants which hardly prepared them for what was to come. Twenty-four came equipped with legal skills. Nine were farmers who were more accustomed to growing crops than a harvest of freedom. Just ordinary men at first glance, but were they? For all brought a sense of dedication that raised them head and shoulders above the common crowd.

Therefore, with the spirits of George Washington, Benjamin Franklin, John Adams and Thomas Jefferson looking over our shoulders, let us sing "Happy Birthday" to this great land. Lady of Liberty with outstretched arms, we salute you. On this Fourth of July we will fly the flag that once held a lesser number of stars but certainly no less degree of love for our beloved country.

How do those songs go that raise our spirits in the singing of them? "My country tis of thee, sweet land of liberty." "O beautiful for spacious skies, for amber waves of grain." "Oh, say, can you see, by the dawns early light."

Home of the brave, land of the free. What a heritage. What a responsibility.

It has been awhile since I have been back to Washington, D.C., but I will soon be going again. It is a needed journey to remind myself of all those magnificent yesterdays. To stand and look up at the face of Lincoln. To linger by the Vietnam Memorial and the new monument to the fighting forces in World War II. To visit the Smithsonian and have so much of yesterday no more than a fingertip away.

Have you in the last few reading minutes perhaps started to think of that bearded patriot with the steely eyes to whom we are all related. Uncle Sam dressed in striped pants, long-tailed coat and a tall hat covered with stars and stripes.

Or, have you thought of the bald eagle made the symbol of America in 1782? Better than the turkey that Ben Franklin first suggested. Perhaps your mind has focused on the Liberty Bell that was rung as the Declaration of Independence was being signed.

One thing is for sure, the world is filled with millions who want to live here; live here in this place with all its warts, a country over two hundred years old and not yet done.

Benjamin Franklin, after he had signed the Constitution threw it down upon the table and said, "I'll give it two hundred years." He never thought it would last any longer than that because he knew that the greatest danger to freedom is freedom itself. And that there are not enough policemen or soldiers to keep freedom alive and well, only self-discipline can do that. That's you and I wanting freedom enough we will vote each time we have the chance. Obey the laws when no one is looking. And define freedom not only by how we enjoy it but how we are also willing to give it to each and every one of our fellow citizens.

OUTDOOR COOKING

They'll be cooking up a storm at Ouabache State Park during their annual outdoor cooking demonstration on July 24. Participants can learn cast iron open-fire cooking, taste test and walk away with new recipes.

This year international dishes will be featured.

The demonstration will be held at Trails End Shelter from 6:30-8 p.m.

There is a program fee of $5. Registration is required by July 16 at (260) 824-0926 or OuabacheInterp@dnr.IN.gov.

Park entrance fees of $5 per vehicle for Indiana residents and $7 per vehicle for non-residents will apply.

ONLINE VOTER REGISTRATION

Beginning July 1, Indiana residents will gain the ability to register to vote online. Online Voter Registration will become the newest addition to www.indianavoters.com and will allow Indiana residents to submit a voter registration application electronically to the appropriate county voter registration office. Only Arizona, Colorado, Kansas, Louisiana, Oregon, Utah and Washington have previously offered online voter registration.

"This is yet another exciting example of how our voting process is becoming simpler and more convenient by incorporating the tools and technologies Hoosiers use everyday," said Indiana Secretary of State Todd Rokita, who serves as Indiana's Chief Election Official and whose office has worked to develop the online voter registration application. "Giving our citizens access to an online registration tool also helps local election administrators better serve voters and should cut their costs, all while enhancing accessibility, accuracy and security."

Indiana residents with a valid Indiana driver's license or Indiana state-issued identification card will be able to use this new tool to submit a new voter registration application or to update an existing voter registration record. Historically, voters have most commonly registered by mail using a paper-based application form or have registered in-person at a county voter registration office, the Indiana Election Division or a branch office of the Bureau of Motor Vehicles.

Online Voter Registration is the result of legislation passed by the Indiana General Assembly in 2009 with bipartisan support that called for enhancements to the traditional paper-based registration system. States adopting an online voter registration option have seen a 60 to 70 percent shift away from paper-based registrations over time. A similar shift in Indiana would greatly reduce pressure on county election administrators to facilitate data entry, especially during peak times at the close of the vote registration period.

Applicants will be required to verify their voting eligibility and personal information, which will then be cross-referenced with databases from the Bureau of Motor Vehicles. Voters will instantly receive a confirmation of their application that they can print. Once confirmed online, the county's voter registration office will approve or reject registrations subject to the same criteria used for other applicants, such as residency or incarceration following conviction of a crime.

Indiana residents have until midnight on Monday, October 4, 2010 to register in order to participate in the November 2010 General Election.

Online voter registration becomes the latest innovative improvement made to www.indianavoters.com to assist Indiana voters. In addition to registering to vote online, www.indianavoters.com provides Hoosiers with the ability to validate their voter registration status, find their polling place location, look into their provisional ballot status information, find county contact information and determine who is on their ballot for an upcoming election.

For more information on voter eligibility and online voter services, please call the Hoosier Voter Hotline at (866) IN-1-VOTE or visit www.indianavoters.com.

WHEN THE GOING GETS TOUGH

by the FlyLady, Marla Cilley
On Saturday I like to watch the Hallmark Channel. Yes I know it is sappy but there is always a lesson that can be learned and a few tears of joy to shed in the end. It helps me to put things into perspective and at the same time drown out the bad news that seeps in through the computer, television and radio.

Every day we get emails from people who are rejoining after giving up a few years earlier. Every day we get emails from people who tell us they don't have time to do everything. They tell us that their lives have gotten chaotic and they could not keep up. This absolutely breaks my heart.

When life gets tough we give up before we ever get started. This is what our perfectionism does to us. It stops us in our tracks every single day. This is why our homes became the chaotic mess that they are. When we don't think we have time; we do nothing. When nothing is getting done, things begin to pile up and we become overwhelmed. It is a vicious cycle.

Have you always bailed when things got tough? You know what they say, "When the going gets tough; the tough get going!" What does that mean for a Sidetracked perfectionist? For me this says that we are not tough! That we don't have the stubbornness and consistency that it takes to stay the distance.

I don't really believe this because I have been where you are. I am as stubborn as they come. What I figured out that New Year's Day was that I had been mean to me and had never established any good habits. When I couldn't keep my house clean after frantic stash and dash, I would beat myself up. Then I would get overwhelmed and just say why bother I couldn't do it right anyway. I decided to be kind to me and start with small habits.

Just the act of being kind to me, helped to eliminate the pressure to clean house perfectly. As one habit lead to another; patience with myself grew. I was seeing great changes in my home and it was because I was finally loving myself enough to take it slow and steady.

When you hear yourself say I don't have time what you are really doing is running from what needs to be done. Set your timer for 2 minutes and just do something. Please don't give up when you really need us the most. When you don't know what to do just go shine your sink; you will be surprised at the joy this will give you.

Your Hallmark movie can have that happy ending too. You just need to go shine your sink and practice keeping it clean and shiny for a whole month. That was my very first habit. It was all I had to do! Yes other things got done but that was my focus! I celebrated that shiny sink each morning and it put a smile on my face and hope in my heart.

was designed to play a minimal role in people's lives.

Our doors have always been open to people from anywhere in the world who want to come here legally to work hard, contribute, and assimilate into our society. America's reputation as a melting pot is derived from the fact that people from every walk of life can work together to create an unstoppable force for good.

In America anything is possible. America is great because it offers its people unlimited opportunity to succeed by bringing their dreams to reality. In America, success requires hard work, determination, and persistence, not permission. We are constitutionally protected to prevent government from confiscating the results of our labor.

America is an engine for unprecedented productivity. Our economic system has been responsible for civilization transforming innovations and discoveries. No other country has even come close and many other systems have failed miserably.

Americans have a big heart. Whether in this country or elsewhere, we help those who can not help themselves. Americans are first on the scene in the wake of natural or civic disasters. We are there with food, supplies, medical aid, and money. Our brave soldiers travel the globe defending those who can't defend themselves.

In America there are no problems that we can't solve. Any obstacles we may face do not taint our greatness. It is our greatness that enables us to overcome adversity and become even stronger in the process. Everyday, be thankful that you live in America and benefit from its greatness. Don't take for granted that which people in other countries can only dream about. Be proud to be an American.
