HELP KEEP SPOTTED LANTERNFLY FROM SPREADING

A new invasive pest was found in the city of Huntington in late July. Spotted lanternfly (SLF) is a federally regulated invasive species. It is a serious new pest that harms plants by slowing their growth and reducing fruit production, especially in vineyards and orchards. This is only the second find of the pest in Indiana (a population was found along the Ohio River in Switzerland Co. last year).

After a Huntington resident reported "mutant ladybugs" feeding on trees of heaven on their property to a Huntington Neighbors Helping Neighbors Facebook page, the message was forwarded to DNR's Division of Entomology & Plant Pathology (DEPP). A business owner also reported finding an immature SLF to the DNR hotline. DEPP staff surveyed the site and discovered multiple life stages of the insect present in trees and on structures near the railroad tracks. DEPP and USDA are investigating to determine exactly how large the infestation is and where it could have come from, as well as how to limit the spread and eradicate the population.

SLF may now be found anywhere in Indiana. Knowing where this pest is located can inform regulatory actions taken to slow its spread and reduce the harm it can cause.

Cliff Sadof, professor of entomology and Purdue Extension fellow, said this migration poses a significant agricultural risk to wine grape growers and honeybee and walnut tree producers. While the spotted lanternfly feeds on over 100 different types of plants, Sadof said, the insect can reproduce only when feeding on walnut trees, grape vines or tree of heaven.

Though the full-grown adults have beautiful coloring and patterns, spotted lanternfly eggs resemble a splash of mud, making them easy to overlook on large vehicles traveling from state to state. Homeowners should, therefore, also remain vigilant in keeping populations in check, Sadof said, as the honeydew secretions from the insect are frequently spread across homes and structures and are extremely difficult to remove when dried.

The Indiana Department of Natural Resources asks all residents to search for and report spotted lanternfly sightings. Anyone spotting the insect should photograph it and send the image and location to DEPP@dnr.in.gov, or call 1-866-No-Exotic. You may also stop by the Huntington County Extension office and pick up a publication called, "Spotted Lanternfly Checklist for Residents." This pub was adapted from material produced by Pennsylvania Dept. of Agriculture. It contains pictures of life stages, potential egg mass locations, and a list to confirm that you have inspected vehicles,

Treva's
Recipe Box
 by Treva Flemming

We were talking at work the other day about canning. I don't do much canning anymore but I do know the in's and out's of home canning. It's great to have some of the fresh tasting foods in the winter. My mom and my grandma always did corn in the canner. Grandma was very particular on how the corn was cut off the cob. You went one way and you scraped the cob to get the milk from the cob but you didn't dare get any of the cob in the corn, it would ruin the whole batch. I usually just shucked the corn to be on the safe side. So I will share with you the recipe for canned corn. Hope you are enjoying the produce coming in from the gardens. I'm definitely getting my fair share of the fresh Indiana tomatoes. They are so good, little salt and I am a happy camper.

Grandma Forst's canned corn

- 9 pints of corn off the cob
- 1c. sugar
- 9 scant tsp. salt
- Cut the corn off the cob, scrape to get the milk from the cob. Mix with salt and sugar.
- Heat till boiling, stirring not to scorch it (or once again you will ruin the whole batch).
- Pack in clean pint jars. Place lids that were heated in hot water and attach rings.
- Process in boiling bath for 3 hours or in pressure canner at 10 # of pressure for 1 1/2 hours

FAMILY MEDICINE RELOCATES

The Parkview Physicians Group (PPG) – Family Medicine team formerly located at 2708 Guilford Street next to the Parkview Walk-In Clinic has moved.

Rowena Yu-Mendador, MD; Lindsey Ribel, FNP-C, and their office support team are now seeing patients at the PPG – Family Medicine office in the John B. Kay Medical Office Building adjacent to Parkview Huntington Hospital. Their new address is 2003 Stults Road, Suite 100, Huntington.

Dr. Yu-Mendador and Ribel join providers Shannon Brisbin, PA; Alesha Collins, NP; Kathleen Leckrone, NP; Kari Rischling, NP; Todd Duerfeldt, DO; and Julie Utendorf, MD, in the practice.

Dr. Yu-Mendador has been serving the varied needs of Huntington County patients of all ages at the Guilford Street PPG – Family Medicine office since 2010. She has special interests in working with seniors and with patients who are facing the challenges of diabetes, hypertension, or fertility issues.

Ribel worked in nursing at Parkview Regional Medical Center, including the coronary intensive care unit, before she joined Dr. Yu's team in 2019 after completing her certification as a family nurse practitioner. She performs outpatient procedures, provides education, and enjoys developing comprehensive treatment plans while building trusting relationships with her patients.

Both Ribel and Yu-Mendador are taking new patients. To schedule an appointment, call the PPG – Family Medicine office at 260-356-5424. Office hours are 8 a.m. – 5 p.m. Monday through Friday, with some extended hour options.

In accordance with Parkview policy, masks are required during patient appointments.

DRIVE SOBER

Drive sober or get pulled over. That's the warning state and local police agencies are issuing to drivers as Indiana gears up for its annual end-of-summer impaired driving enforcement campaign. Starting this weekend through Labor Day, officers across the state will be increasing patrols and sobriety checkpoints to crack down on those driving under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

The extra high-visibility enforcement is funded by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration (NHTSA) through grants administered by the Indiana Criminal Justice Institute (ICJI).

"People who drive drunk or high aren't thinking about the repercussions," said Devon McDonald, ICJI Executive Director. "It's not just their life they're risking, but the life of the person in the car next to them and the pedestrian crossing the street. No one 'accidentally' drives impaired. It's always a choice."

Alcohol-impaired traffic fatalities have increased over the past few years, as have other dangerous driving behaviors, fueling a nationwide surge in roadway deaths. It's an unfortunate trend that doesn't appear to be slowing.

Newly released data from NHTSA shows that an estimated 9,560 people died in motor vehicle crashes in the first quarter of 2022. That's up 7% from the previous year and the highest number of deaths in 20 years for that period.

In Indiana, traffic fatalities increased by more than 20% during that time compared to 2021. If the pace continues, 2022 could be the third straight year with more fatalities, following 897 in 2020 and 931 in 2021.

Drunk driving continues to be a major factor making up roughly 25% of the state's fatal collisions, but alcohol isn't the only concern.

Research indicates drug prevalence has been on the rise among drivers during the pandemic. Last year, the number of blood samples submitted to the Indiana Department of Toxicology for drug analysis after a crash increased by 7%.

"Since the start of the pandemic, more drivers are testing positive for THC and poly-drug use, a combination of drugs," said Robert Duckworth, ICJI Traffic Safety Director. "We're working to address that by training more officers in advanced detection techniques and providing new tools to law enforcement, but the best and easiest solution is for people to not drive high in the first place."

Driving under the influence, whether it's drugs or alcohol, is illegal in Indiana. Those who choose to drive impaired are, not only risking their life and the lives of others, but also could face an arrest, jail time, and substantial fines and attorney fees. The average drunk driving arrest costs up to $10,000.

With officers showing zero tolerance throughout the campaign, ICJI recommends celebrating the end of summer responsibly by having a safety plan in place. Even if it's only one drink, designate a sober driver or use public transportation or a ride service to get home safely. Never drive impaired or let friends get behind the wheel if they've been drinking.

It's also important to wear a seat belt at all times. It's the best form of protection against drunk drivers. Motorists are encouraged to report suspected impaired drivers by calling 911 or contacting their local police department.

INFLATION REDUCTION ACT: WHAT YOU SHOULD KNOW

from Rufener Financial The Inflation Reduction Act, signed into law on August 16, 2022, includes health-care and energy-related provisions, a new corporate alternative minimum tax, and an excise tax on certain corporate stock buybacks. Additional funding is also provided to the IRS. Some significant provisions in the Act are discussed below.

Medicare
The legislation authorizes the Department of Health and Human Services to negotiate Medicare prices for certain high-priced, single-source drugs. However, only 10 of the most expensive drugs will be chosen initially, and the negotiated prices will not take effect until 2026. For each of the following years, more negotiated drugs will be added.

Starting in 2025, a $2,000 annual cap (adjusted for inflation) will apply to out-of-pocket costs for Medicare Part D prescription drugs.

Starting in 2023, deductibles will not apply to covered insulin products under Medicare Part D or under Part B for insulin furnished through durable medical equipment. Also, the applicable copayment amount for covered insulin products will be capped at $35 for a one-month supply.

Health Insurance
Starting in 2023, a high-deductible health plan can provide that the deductible does not apply to selected insulin products.

Affordable Care Act subsidies (scheduled to expire at the end of 2022) that improved affordability and reduced health insurance premiums have been extended through 2025. Indexing of percentage contribution rates used in determining a taxpayer's required share of premiums is delayed until after 2025, preventing more significant premium increases. Additionally, those with household incomes higher than 400% of the federal poverty line remain eligible for the premium tax credit through 2025.

Energy-Related Tax Credits
Many current energy-related tax credits have been modified and extended, and a few new credits have been added. Many of the credits are available to businesses, and others are available to individuals. The following two credits are substantial revisions and extensions of an existing tax credit for electric vehicles.

Starting in 2023, a tax credit of up to $7,500 is available for the purchase of new clean electric vehicles meeting certain requirements. The credit is not available for vehicles with a manufacturer's suggested retail price higher than $80,000 for sports utility vehicles and pickups, $55,000 for other vehicles. The credit is not available if the modified adjusted gross income (MAGI) of the purchaser exceeds $150,000 ($300,000 for joint filers and surviving spouses, $225,000 for heads of household).

Starting in 2024, an individual can elect to transfer the credit to the dealer as payment for the vehicle.

Similarly, a tax credit of up to $4,000 is available for the purchase of certain previously owned clean electric vehicles from a dealer. The credit is not available for vehicles with a sales price exceeding $25,000. The credit is not available if the purchaser's MAGI exceeds $75,000 ($150,000 for joint filers and surviving spouses, $75,000 for heads of household). An individual can elect to transfer the credit to the dealer as payment for the vehicle.

Corporate Alternative Minimum Tax

For taxable years beginning after December 31, 2022, a new 15% alternative minimum tax (AMT) will apply to corporations (other than an S corporation, regulated investment company, or a real estate investment trust) with an average annual adjusted financial statement income in excess of $1 billion.

Adjusted financial statement income means the net income or loss of the taxpayer set forth in the corporation's financial statement (often referred to as book income), with certain adjustments. If regular tax exceeds the tentative AMT, the excess amount can be carried forward as a credit against the AMT in future years.

Excise Tax on Repurchase of Stock

For corporate stock repurchases after December 31, 2022, a new 1% excise tax will be imposed on the value of a covered corporation's stock repurchases during the taxable year.

A covered corporation means any domestic corporation whose stock is traded on an established securities market. However, the excise tax does not apply: (1) to a repurchase that is part of a nontaxable reorganization, (2) with respect to certain contributions of stock to an employer-sponsored retirement plan or employee stock ownership plan, (3) if the total value of stock repurchased during the year does not exceed $1 million, (4) to a repurchase by a securities dealer in the ordinary course of business, (5) to repurchases by a regulated investment company or a real estate investment trust, or (6) to the extent the repurchase is treated as a dividend for income tax purposes.

Increased Funding for the IRS

Substantial additional funds are provided to the IRS to help fund operations and business systems modernization and to improve enforcement of tax laws.

A BUS TRIP TO CAPE COD DAY # 2, PART 1

Our passenger bus left the Double Tree Motel in Syracuse, NY at 8:30 am and entered I-90 East again. As we passed the Chittenango exit, a roadside sign listed Albany, the capital of NY, at 128 miles ahead. Both sides of the interstate highway were covered with green-leaved deciduous and several straight-trunked pine trees. Traffic flowed along steadily.

We passed an Old Dominion semi-truck from Thomasville, NC carrying furniture of course and a flatbed one with two pontoon boats headed to Montauk, NY. This route took us through the "Central Leatherstocking Region," a tourism area, which has now been renamed, The Central New York Region. Our bus overtook a truck and attached trailer with lettering, "The Farm Just Got Closer." I'm not even hungry yet. Don't put thoughts in my mind. We still have 3 hours of traveling before lunch. The surrounding area was mostly grassy farm land with some marshy spots. Soon the Erie Canal was crossed and followed for a while as we neared Utica, NY. Eastward, Cooperstown, baseball hall of fame was noted.

The bus passed vehicle carriers loaded with Lexus, Mercedes, and customized VW's. Ahead were tree-covered mountains with a few fields, but more pastures on the hillsides. The exit of Canajohnie, NY was avoided and the shallow, Flat Creek was crossed. The 10 am rest stop occurred at the Mohawk Plaza which was 22 miles west of Albany. One whole hillside field was covered with solar panels. After passing the Schenectady exit and Guilderland Service area, our passenger vehicle crossed the Hudson River at 11 am. Boston was a meager 157 miles away. The bus approached Massachusetts and its Turnpike at 11:22 am.

Our driver sped by the Westfield and North Hampton exits before bridging the Connecticut River at Springfield, MA at noon. Ahead were many miles of unpurposed, green landscape. A beaver dam occupied a small, marshy stream. The lunch stop was scheduled for 12:30. One hour later, the bus was again moving towards Cape Cod. This destination was 2 hours away. At 2 pm near Worcester, MA, I-90 was abandoned for I-495 South. Our tour director strongly suggested a one hour nap as there would be nothing interesting to see for that duration of time.

As the tree-lined highway continued, the smallish Charles River appeared with an adjacent, bare, walking path leading to what seemed to be a sawmill. Can't explain that connection. Near the Bellingham and Woonsocket exits, the bus was officially entering the Wrentham State Park which is known for its hilly, woodland trails. No time to entertain a hike; we had a date with the ocean.

Our bus navigated over I-95, the Boston to Providence travelway. We passed the Fall River, Middleborough, Kingston, and Plymouth, MA turn-offs. A red, "Yankee Sprinkler" service truck rushed past us on the right side of the highway. An emergency water run? I-495 ended and State Highway #25 commenced. We were 5 miles from Cape Cod. Buzzards Bay, to the south, came into view before the Bourne Bridge across the Cape Cod Canal was breached at 3 pm. This latter body of water actually made Cape Cod an island! There will be more information about the canal later.

More later.

HOW THE FUTURE OF DRONE TECHNOLOGY IS ALREADY HERE

(StatePoint) Since their first use in the mid-1800s in the form of hot air balloons, unmanned aerial vehicles have been used for security, photography, safety, and many other applications. Today, drones have a significant impact on the way we do business -- from warfare reconnaissance and real estate marketing, to filmmaking and inventory tracking.

For example, General Motors uses drones to inspect its facilities as a way to safely monitor inventory on its production lots in two to three hours versus what might otherwise take eight to 12 hours with an on-ground, manual inspection. These inspections can also be performed without a complete shutdown of the facilities and without the risk of hoisting personnel in the air or onto the rails.

Additionally, on the military battlefield, drones are playing increasingly pivotal roles in providing crucial real-time intelligence and reconnaissance data that allow for tactical advantages. Pre-mission mapping, target surveillance, and battle damage assessment are just some of the benefits provided by drones on the battlefield without additional risk to human soldiers.

More industries are catching on to the technology's potential to speed up protocol, offer safer working conditions, and provide fewer disruptions. To meet this rising demand, there are 865,505 drones registered in the United States and counting and 280,418 certified remote pilots, according to the Federal Aviation Administration.

"Given the many critical uses of drone technology, we are working to ensure that drones offer speedier, more versatile, uninterrupted footage that can be acquired using safer, remotely operated technology," says Jeff Thompson, CEO of Red Cat Holdings, a leading provider of drone-based products, services and solutions.

Thompson identifies one of the latest innovations in drone technology as the ability to pilot a drone from virtually anywhere in the world using only an internet connection via a mobile phone in the vicinity of the drone. There are significant efficiencies, ranging from reduced personnel and drastically reduced inspection time, that arise from the ability to inspect infrastructure, equipment, structures, land areas, and job sites using only a drone and a pilot that are hundreds or even thousands of miles apart.

Another innovation? The possibility of operating four drones on a single controller to provide actionable footage immediately. Red Cat Holdings' four-drone "swarm" marks the first instance of a fully operational multi-drone system coming to market. Red Cat's 4-Ship product allows control of up to four of Red Cat subsidiary Teal's Golden Eagle units, and an additional linked controller facilitates the handoff of control from one pilot to another. This new product offering potentially provides continuous 360-degree surveillance of a target facilitated by a single pilot in control of up to four drones. To learn more or preorder, visit redcat holdings.com.

From municipal traffic monitoring to personal recreational use, drones are changing and improving lives. And, thanks to advancements in their design, they are becoming better, faster and more useful tools across a growing number of applications and industries.
