PRESENTING THE DOUGH

The Team of Hope is from the UMMH and 100% of the funds from this and other fundraisers will be donated to the Alzheimer's Association at the annual Memory Walk to be held on September 9th.

East of Chicago and the Team of Hope sponsored a pizza buffet fundraiser to raise money for the Alzheimer's Association.

THANK YOU

Dollar General thanks everyone for their help in filling the Tools for Life Barrel at the store. The barrel will be available until the middle of September for donations.

For more information and a registration form, contact the Wells County Office of the Purdue Cooperative Extension Service, 1240 S. 4-H Road, Bluffton, IN 824-6412.

LIFE JACKETS SAVE LIVES

With boating season in full swing, the Indiana Department of Natural Resources reminds Hoosier boaters that if each one of them wore a lifejacket, more than 80 percent of boating fatality victims would instead be alive to boat another day.

Boating accidents can and do happen with terrifying speed. Rarely is there time to reach for stowed lifejackets.

While some inexpensive lifejackets boaters buy to meet the mandatory standard for lifejackets carried onboard are bulky and uncomfortable, effective Coast Guard-approved lifejackets are now available in a variety of styles. These lifejackets are not only comfortable, but fashionable. Many are thin and flexible. Some styles are built right into fishing vests or hunting coats. Others are inflatable — as compact as a scarf or fanny pack until they hit water, when they automatically fill with air.

Lifejackets come in all sizes. It's important, especially when children are boating, for each boater to wear a correctly fitting personal flotation device. Adult-size life jackets will not work for children. Special lifejackets for children are available.

Just as with adult lifejackets, in order to work correctly, a child's lifejacket must be worn. It also must fit snugly enough to prevent the child's chin or ears from slipping through. The rationale for having child-specific lifejackets for boating is similar to that for having infant seats and child booster seats in cars, rather than ineffectively and dangerously strapping in our toddlers with adult seat belts.

Indiana Conservation Officers remind all recreational skippers that as a boat operator, you're in command of the safety of your passengers. Make sure all aboard are wearing a proper lifejacket before you shove off.

There's no excuse not to wear a lifejacket on the water.

ICE CREAM SOCIAL

August 26th from 4 — 7 p.m.

The American Heritage Dictionary of the English Language: Fourth Edition 2000 gives the definition of ice-cream social as: Noun: Chiefly Upper Northern U.S.: A picnic featuring ice cream, often held for the purpose of raising money for charity. Also called ice cream sociable.

At Dillman UB Church we call it "a great time". We give a big thank you to John and Linda Walters and Keith and Jeni Paxson who work hard in advance of the 26th making all the ice cream. Come for the food, enjoy the fellowship, and be a generous giver. Traditional menu includes: sloppy joe, hot dogs, sloppy dogs, chips, relishes, drinks, desserts and of course lots and lots of Dillman made ice cream.

NEW PA AT MMC

KUDOS, KICKS & KARATS

UPTOWN GARDNER

The potatoes are all most ready to dig. I have dug a couple hills to see how they are doing. Really looking good and taste great. Also the weeds are doing an exceptional good job of growing. This hot weather kept me inside and the garden soon became an eye sore.

While I was at work at the Warren Library I was doing some research for a patron and found the articles written some years ago by George Smethurst who had a book published "The River Road". It is a collection of thoughts about people and places in the Warren area. If you have not read it I believe you will find some enjoyable reading and learn some history of the area. Our Library has a copy to check out.

Among the stories is an article called "The Ice Man Cometh". What a cool article for a hot day.

I remember the ice man at Andrews, his name was Jim Russell and was such a great guy. He also was one of our volunteer firemen.

He came to our house on a regular schedule in the summer. Seems he always knew how much ice to leave even if the ice card wasn't in the window. The ice card was a large square and had numbers of 25 50 75 100 on it in a square shape and what ever amount was needed you turned the card to the number and had it upright and in the window where it could be seen. You could also go to the ice barn and get extra if needed. When my dad went after extra ice Jim would know the Forst's were going to make ice cream.

In the hot summer days he always had few extra pieces chipped off for the kids on the route. That was a nice treat as none of us knew much about ice cubes in a refrigerator.

The ice man in Warren was no doubt just as popular. The article Mr. Smethurst mentioned Grant Williams, Paul Yount and Vier Ditzler as delivery men. I am sure Paul Yount can tell stories about the Ice Man.

The article also said that there were three homes in Warren that received ice the year around. What a luxury that was.

We have been told that our home ( the former home of Dr. and Mrs Claude Black) had a unique way of having the ice delivered to their home. The ice box was on an outside wall of the kitchen and had a trap door so the ice could be put into the box from the outside and not enter the house for a delivery. I would suspect that that was one house that received ice the year around. The ice door is no longer there but many have shared great memories with us about the Blacks and the home. Our thanks to them for the sharing.

Here is a real cool recipe for a hot summer day.

Frozen Fruit Salad or Slush

Boil 1 cup sugar and 1 cup water let cool Make a mixture of 1 - 20 ounce can of crushed pineapple with juice. 6 bananas sliced. Stir and add 1 can of Mandarin oranges drained 1 can bing cherries drained 1 jar of maraschino cherries drained and cut in half . Pour over the fruit 1 - 12 can of orange juice concentrate thawed 1 - 12 ounce can of water and the boiled syrup. Mix well and freeze in containers size of your choice.

This makes about 1 gallon. It is real refreshing on a hot day. Have a great summer and see you at the market.

he studied and played in jazz bands with great saxophonist Ben Webster, eventually landing the opportunity to tour with the famous Stan Kenton Orchestra. Quigley continued to play in several jazz bands in Fort Wayne, Florida, and Las Vegas.

Quigley and close friend and fellow Peru native Tom Gustin organized and performed the first Summer Jazz Festival in Peru in August of 1998. Quigley often stated the Jazz Festival was his most satisfying performance, even surpassing his stints in New York and Las Vegas. After Quigley's death, Gustin continued the Festival, eventually renaming it to honor his good friend and fellow musician. Per Quigley's request, the Jazz Festival remains open to the public at no charge, and features the talents of local and area musicians only.

For more information regarding the Richard Quigley Memorial Jazz Festival, please contact the Honeywell Center Box Office at (260) 563-1102.

NEWBORN CHIME AT PHH

Mothers who bring their children into the world at Parkview Huntington Hospital's New Life Center may now celebrate those births in song.

Shane and Melissa Stecher's 2-year-old daughter, Kennedy, was the first to push a button in the hall of the New Life Center on July 28, which activated Parkview Huntington's new "Celebration of Life Chime," a one-minute recording of Brahms' Lullaby that played throughout the hospital complex.

The lullaby announced the birth of daughter Jadyn Michelle Stecher, the family's second child.

"This is done in many obstetric departments across the country," said Peggy McKee, vice president of patient care services at Parkview Huntington. "It's a way for parents, particularly the father and other children, to celebrate the baby's birth," she added.

"It's a great idea," said new father Shane Stecher. "And Kennedy loved it, too. She pressed it three times."

"It was special to be the first family to be able to press the button, too," added Shane's wife, Melissa, who, in addition to giving birth to her second child, is an RN at Parkview Huntington in the In-Patient Department.

Surgery Manager Jennifer Perlmutter, RN, who helped coordinate arrangements for the lullaby chime, said, "I think it's a unique way for parents to celebrate bringing new life into this world."

MARKET REPORT

It was a great day at the Farmers Market this past week. Many vendors sold out.

The gardens are producing well and had a nice variety of fresh produce. There were tomatoes, sun dried tomatoes, cucumbers, melons, peppers, zucchini, dried gourds for decorating, sweet corn, fresh herbs, plus all of our regular vendors with their great items.

Please note that Rabbs with their Angus beef will not be there this week as they will be at the State Fair but will return the next week.

Be sure to check us out each Saturday from 8 a.m. till noon.

Thank you to each of you who visit the market. We enjoy visiting with you and meeting new people each week.

QUILT SHOW

The Artisanfest committee invite all of you great quilters to participate in the quilt show September 8 & 9 during the Artisanfest in Warren. It will be held in the Knight-Bergman Civic Center along with the juried art show.

Awards will be given in categories.

There will be an area for anyone wishing to show antique quilts for display only. Those quilts should be 50 plus years old.

All possible means of protection will be given to all entries.

For information or entry forms contact Ruth Herring 260 375 3329 or by email quiltshow@webtv.net.

INDOT URGES CAUTION

Twenty-three children die each year in school transportation related traffic crashes.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. – The Indiana Department of Transportation (INDOT) is warning motorists to be aware of school buses on Hoosier roadways as students head back to school. For nearly 756,000 Indiana children, the school day begins and ends with a trip on the school bus. For these children, the greatest risk is not riding the bus, but approaching and leaving the bus. Nationally, an average of 23 school children die in school bus related accidents each year – of those 23 students, 17 are killed while either approaching or leaving the bus.

INDOT is urging motorists to take simple safety steps and follow traffic laws to keep all Hoosier students safe while getting to and from school this year. Important safety tips for drivers include:

- Back out carefully: Watch for children heading to school when backing out of a driveway.
- Slow down: Watch for children walking in the street and playing or congregating near bus stops.
- Be alert: Children arriving late for the bus may dart into the street without looking for traffic.
- Obey the laws: Yellow flashing lights mean motorists should slow down and prepare to stop. Red flashing lights mean motorists must stop their cars and wait until the red lights stop flashing, the extended stop sign is withdrawn and the bus starts moving again.

Parents also play an important role in keeping their children safe while riding the bus. School children should be taught the following school bus safety rules:

- Get to the bus stop at least five minutes early
- When the bus approaches, stand at least three giant steps away from the curb.
- If you have to cross the street in front of a bus, walk on the sidewalk or along the side of the road at least five giant steps ahead of the bus before you cross.
- Never walk behind the bus.
- If you drop something near the bus, tell the bus driver. Never try to pick it up yourself.

While it is important to follow all safety rules, school buses remain the safest form of highway transportation. By following all safety rules and obeying traffic laws, Hoosier motorists can help ensure all Indiana children have a safe school year.

WHERE DOES YOUR MONEY GO?

Why does it feel like your income is shrinking and your bills are expanding?

Did you know:
 40% of all Americans live on 110% of their income;

The average income of American families, after adjusting for inflation, declined 2.3% in 2004 compared to 2001;

Interest rates for credit have been steadily increasing since 2004

Does your money run out before payday?

Where Does Your Money Go? is a program developed by Purdue University to help people learn how money decisions today affect them in the future. Life Long Learning of Huntington County, Duke Energy, Huntington County Purdue Extension Office, Kids Kampus and Youth Services Bureau are proud to present this program in Huntington County. Participants attending this 2 hour program will learn how to handle money in a way that gives a feeling of control over finances and how to stop spending leaks and save money for other, more important things.

Classes will be offered twice a month starting August 17, 2006. This two hour class will be offered during daytime hours on the first Thursday of each month from 10am-12pm and during evening hours on the third Thursday of each month from 6pm-8pm. Registration is $25 per person, some scholarships may be available upon request. Childcare may also be available during the evening sessions, upon request. Seating is limited to 10 per session. If you are interested, please contact Karen Hinshaw at the Huntington County Purdue Extension Office for more information or a registration form. Pre-registration is required.

NEW SCHOLARSHIP

Indianapolis—The Indiana Homeland Security Foundation has announced the creation of a new scholarship program for students interested in pursuing careers in public safety.

The Hoosier Safety Scholarship Program is for Indiana residents who are interested in a higher education degree and who currently volunteer with a local public safety organization. Incoming and continuing students are both eligible to apply. Hoosier Safety Scholarships at $2,000 for full-time students and $1,000 for part-time students can be awarded to applicants enrolled in an accredited college in Indiana.

"This new scholarship represents a great opportunity for our agency to contribute to the future of public safety in Indiana," said Indiana Department of Homeland Security Executive Director J. Eric Dietz. "We are proud that we can make this scholarship available to help Hoosiers who desire to make a difference in their communities through a career in public safety."

The Indiana Homeland Security Foundation recently approved $40,000 for the creation of this scholarship program. The revenue for the Foundation is generated largely through the sales of

"Hoosier Safety" license plates. More information about the Hoosier Safety Scholarship Program and a link to the application can be found by going to the Indiana Department of Homeland Security Website at <http://www.in.gov/dhs> and clicking on the Hoosier Safety license plate at the bottom of the home page.

LOANS FOR SMALL BUSINESS

The U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA) will conduct a business loan clinic on Tuesday, August 29th from 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. at the Marion Chamber of Commerce, 215 S. Adams Street, Marion.

The business loan clinic will provide guidance to prepare small business owners for meeting with a lender. Attendees will learn how SBA is involved in the loan process, what documents to take to the lender, and how to make a good first impression with the lender. An SBA Business Development Specialist will also review SBA programs and services that can help an entrepreneur start or grow a business. Attendees will learn how to:

- Improve business cash flow;
- Increase potential for success with lower monthly loan payments;

- Refinance existing debt; and
- Eliminate balloon payments.

Reservations are required as seating is limited. There is no cost for attending this SBA loan clinic on Tuesday, August 29th from 9:00 a.m. to 11:00 a.m. at the Marion Chamber of Commerce.

For more information or to reserve your space, contact Paul Wyatt of SBA at 317-226-6730.

The U.S. Small Business Administration is an agency of the Federal government.

COUNCIL NOTES

The Van Buren Town Council held a lengthy meeting on Wednesday evening, Aug. 2. President Tony Manry opened the meeting at 7 p.m. and all in attendance repeated the Pledge to the American Flag.

Minutes of the previous meeting were approved as submitted.

A citizen in attendance was concerned about people in Van Buren moving from one place to another and moving junk cars and other debris to the new location.

Bill Mcalpin presented Council with quotes for installing a new 30 foot communication tower and necessary equipment for Fire Departments. Council agreed to take the matter under advisement.

Tonya Ford from Area Plan presented Council with an amended Grant County Zoning Ordinance. Council signed the amended Ordinance.

Herb Spencer, town Attorney, presented a Bond Ordinance for a sewer project. This Ordinance provides methods of financing of the project. Council adopted the Ordinance on the first reading by Title only.

Officer Wertherington presented the Police report. He said provisions have been made for Police coverage for the Popcorn Festival. Aug. 10, 11 and 12.

Engineer Dave Lahey talked with Council concerning cost for necessary storm sewer repair. Unfortunately this project is not only necessary but costly.

In connection with the storm sewer project, Council introduced Ordinance 6-2006, storm drain utility. This allows for a study, as to ways to finance the project.

Superintendent Jim Webb reported all meters had been read in July and one meter installed.

Town crews have been busy getting ready for the Popcorn Festival.

Crews are still mowing three properties and plans are to charge the owners.

The Garfield Statue is expected to be dedicated during the Festival.

The next Council meeting will be held Aug. 16.

FLEA/FARMER'S MARKET

Ossian Psi Otes will be sponsoring a Flea and Farmer's Market during Ossian Days. ### SPEAKER AT MUSEUM

HUNTINGTON - Noted outdoor writer and television personality Ron Schara will be the speaker for an annual fundraising banquet for the Sheets Wildlife Museum, which opened here a year ago.

The event is Saturday, Sept. 9, in the USA Auction building, across Safari Trail from the museum, at US 24 West and Rangeline Road.

Schara does a national TV program, "Backroads with Ron & Raven," that has consistently ranked as one of the highest-rated productions on The Outdoor Life Network. He also hosts "The Outdoor Beat" on ESPN2 and his shows are seen on The Outdoor Channel. Additionally, Schara serves as the national spokesman for the Gander Mountain sporting goods business.

The sportsman's work in television has earned him six Emmys. Since graduating with degrees in journalism and fish and wildlife biology, Schara has spent nearly three decades writing newspaper and magazine outdoor pieces as well as hosting radio shows and television programs.

Schara has become known as someone who doesn't focus on himself but allows his stories to happen through the outdoor experiences of others. And he does it in a way that helps his audience be in touch with the enriching opportunities afield, accomplishing that with colorful storytelling.

At the museum banquet, Schara will show some footage of wildlife, with special emphasis on hunting and the need to preserve the right to hunt.

Fundraising activities will include raffles - one for a large gun safe or cash - and other games of chance, bingo and live and silent auctions. Some of the items sold by auction will be decorative decoys and various Wild Wings nature prints. Featured pieces are expected to include a Bantam Mossburg Junior 20 gauge pump gun, 12 gauge and 28 gauge Mossburg Silver Anniversary over-and-under shotguns, plus a Henry Golden Boy 17 caliber rifle.

All proceeds from the evening will enhance outreach of the Sheets Wildlife Museum, which showcases nearly 200 fish and animals taken from around the world by lifelong Huntington County resident Sumner B. Sheets.

The museum's doors opened to the public last July and it operates Tuesday through Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

An emphasis of the museum is education about the role of hunters and fishermen in promoting wildlife conservation. Sportsmen accomplish that through spending for licenses and equipment and through a variety of organizations they support, such as Ducks Unlimited, the Wild Turkey Federation and Pheasants Forever.

In addition to handouts and messages told and displayed throughout the museum, wildlife conservation is being promoted through an annual conservation scholarship, awarded for the first time this month.

Teachers of classes touring the museum can obtain fact sheets and state-standard lesson plans at various grade levels for specific fish or animals in the exhibit. Those materials were developed by education students at Huntington University as part of their curriculum requirements.

For details about the banquet tickets, the conservation scholarship or a museum visit, call 260-356-WILD (9453) or 260-786-3693.

HORSERACING IN THE 20's & 30's

by Ed Crismore

(Following is an article submitted by Avon Crismore of Uniondale. She interviewed her 85 year old husband "Ed" about his memories of when he was a boy.)

Several towns in our area were famous in the 1920's and 1930's for horse racing, trotter horse racing: Roanoke, Montpelier and Warren. I think Marion had horse racing, too, but my folks and I didn't attend the horse races there. During a trotter race there would be from six to nine horses and different colored carts with the guy in the cart driving the horse. The races were held on weekends in the afternoons; sometimes there was one race, sometimes several races, during the summer and early fall seasons. The races were held on racetracks on the edge of towns near or on the fair grounds. My dad and mom and I loved the races. We and other people sat in a grandstand, some with a roof, some without a roof. The owners of the horses were from the local areas. I'm not sure about the drivers, though.

When I was 7 or 8 years old, my folks took me often to the trotter races in Roanoke and Montpelier. We lived in Uniondale then on Lincoln Street near the entrance to the current mobile homes, near the street to Jeff Espich's home. We would go to Roanoke to see my dad's relatives, the Zions and the Welchs and all of us would go to the horse race. The grandstand there had a roof over it for shade and for rain protection. In Roanoke the racetrack was north of town in a fairground— on low ground. If there were heavy rains at that place, the racetrack would be under water — it flooded. The Welchs had a 15 year old pretty daughter that I liked. The Zions had younger children, both girls and boys nearer my age. We kids played around and had fun. On those days, the racetracks had two or three clowns that entertained us before a race or between races. The clowns rode around the track in old junky cars and did funny stunts. Everyone enjoyed those clowns. After the game we would to a Roanoke restaurant where I would order my usual hamburger steak, mashed potatoes and pie (sugar cream or raspberry pie) — still my favorite foods today at a restaurant.

We also went to Montpelier to see the trotters and to see my dad's relative there, his Crismore cousins (they put an "a" in their name, but we didn't) and his Haiflich cousins. The grandstand in Montpelier did not have a roof on it and was on the southeast side of town, I think. I liked to watch the horse races — they were always exciting, but I thought that the town of Montpelier was boring for a young kid like me.

When I was older, about 11 or 12 years old, remember going to horseraces in Warren. In the 1930's Warren was famous for horseracing, especially the trotter races. The people who organized the horse races asked my dad to bring his huckster wagon to the racetrack near the grandstand to sell food. They provided tables and chairs for people to eat at. A huckster wagon had a truck cab and a customized truck bed. Wooden shelves were built on each side of the truck bed and had an aisle in the middle. There were counters that opened up and dropped down on each side of the truck for customers to order and receive their food. My mom helped make the food for dad to sell — hot ham sandwiches and homemade soup if the weather was cool. Dad had a little stove that he put outside, used to make hamburgers and to heat the soup. He also had a big urn for holding and heating the coffee that mom made at home.

Dad brought along a wooded cooler filled with ice from his grocery store in Uniondale. In it would be the soda pop—bottles of Lemon Sour, Root Beer, Sarsaparilla, Coke, and Strawberry pop. Dad probably served the sandwiches on a napkin. The soup was served hi big bowls. The coffee cups and soup bowls were washed hi a tub sitting in the aisle of the huckster wagon. Dad was trying making money at the horse race to add to the small profit he made from his little grocery store in the summer kitchen of our home in Uniondale. Dad asked me to help him sell the food at Warren by going around the crowd, yelling about our huckster food. I also helped him prepare the food. I was not bashful—I talked to everyone. Dad had a regular huckster wagon route in the Uniondale rural areas, too selling canned goods or bartering with farmers for chickens and eggs. It was Depression Time with horse races, trotters and huckster wagons.

MY TOWN AND YOURS

by Denny Stroud

The year was 1902, the oil wells were at their peak and the population was 2000. Warren town board members were Columbus Harrold, Frank Stebbins, Phillip Smethurst and John H. Thompson. Charles E. Small was the town clerk and Frank Andrew took care of the treasure duties.

There were three grist mills in and near Warren. The McCoy mill, about a mile up the river, was operated by Samuel Jaques. John and Jacob Finkle had the mill across the bridge and Phillip Smethurst operated a steam mill about where Ackley Automotive is now. The Smethurst mill burned down and the McCoy mill was extensively damaged during the flood of 1913. The McCoy mill was sold, disassembled, floated down stream and the timbers were used to construct the five story mill that became known as Salamonie Mill.

The Studebakers of Bluffton owned the elevator and it was managed by William Alexander and Lee Haines. Warren had a planning mill, located at the end of Matilda street and was owned by Jack Hubbard. John Click was manager of Cline Lumber Co. and I. M. Hollingworth was getting the Warren Telephone Co. going well, he soon sold to another party and they sold to a company of local residents who incorporated it.

John A. Border operated a saw mill at the north end of Nancy street on the north side of the railroad. In 1902 the timber business had almost vanished but he found a ready market sawing timbers for the oil rigs.

There were five barber shops in town in 1902. The largest one was owned by Charley Buffington located in the old Contesse block, which was wood buildings just north of were the Pharmacy is today. There were five chairs in the shop with Holly Smith, John and Ross Buffington and their father. Back then the regular customers of the barber shop had their own individuals soap mugs with their names printed with nice letters and a picture to show what kind of business that person was engaged in. The mugs were lined up in a case fastened to the wall and when Mr. Regular Customer would come in the barber would go over and get his cup and proceed to work up the lather. In those days the standard price was 20 cents for a haircut and 10 cents for a shave.

Come in and visit us on Sundays 1:00 p.m.- 4:00 p.m.. We now have air conditioning, so you can look around and get cooled off.

ONE BITE AT A TIME

by The FlyLady, Marla Cilley
It is so much easier to clean in a room without clutter. Don't get overwhelmed by all the clutter; 15 minutes a day over what you do in your routines. I know you don't think this is going to work, but I promise that those 15 minutes of concentrated decluttering every day will make a difference in your home and your attitude. It is the consistency of eating the elephant one bite at a time that will slowly make the whole elephant disappear.

I have a story to tell you about my Sweet Darling. He is the king of the one bite rule. Several years ago he had a British Sports car; an MG. In fact the car was always being worked on. After a minor car accident the MG was totaled. So he bought a second car the same model for parts. He is pretty good at fixing anything. It took both cars to keep just one running. He was left with only the stripped down parts car. Over an entire summer, he systematically cut that car (with a hack saw) into dinner plate sized parts and sent it to the landfill one plate at a time. It was his goal to do something to dismantle this car each day. At the end of the summer he was finished. It was almost therapy for my sweetie: the car had betrayed him. That car was a pain and he got rid of it one bite at a time. His bailiff says that he never wants Robert mad at him because you should beware of the anger of a patient man.

The reason I mentioned this story, is because in our impatience to see our homes clean, we over-do. Then we get overwhelmed and we QUIT. I want you to do a little every day and not crash and burn: Baby Steps, 15 minutes of decluttering and consistency will be the keys to your clean home and your peace.

If you are not being consistent with your routines, even small ones, then you are not going to have your goal of a clean and peaceful home. This hit and miss attitude is what got your home in a mess to start with. You clean like a banshee for two days because of guests, and then when they leave, you let things go to pot because you are worn to a frazzle.

This has got to stop; I want you to enjoy your home, your family and your guests. You can't do this if you are exhausted. I want your pledge that this is going to stop, "crisis cleaning". That you will commit to doing your routines DAILY, and that you will spend 15 minutes decluttering each day.

I am not the drill sergeant that many of you think I am. I don't spend all day cleaning. Even when I was decluttering I only did 15 minutes a day. I used the 27 fling boogie to declutter our home. It was almost as if I didn't clean at all. After three months of decluttering every day and doing my routines, our home became a paradise, instead of the pig sty that it was. Every morning and walk into a clean and shining home and it is still a big shock and a GO ME moment for me. I would walk into my clean kitchen and just smile. Some of you know what I am talking about. It is a pleasure to not be greeted by mystery water and yesterday's dirty dishes and feel like you are behind before you even make your coffee.

I want you to smile when you walk into your kitchen each morning. Visualize your clean and peaceful home. Let go of your perfectionism and impatience and take baby steps. You can do this; if you will just eat this elephant one bite at a time.

DRINK UP

by The Dinner Diva, Leanne Ely
Most people have a drinking problem.

I bet that got your attention! What I am talking about has nothing to do with martinis. I'm talking about developing a good water drinking habit.

Yeah, I know. You've heard this how many times before? Water is good for you, blah blah blah.

Well guess what? It's time you made peace with the fact that your body needs water. If you're interested in making sure your body uses the nutrients you give it via food, you gotta drink water. If you're battling blemishes and want nicer skin, you gotta drink water. If you're wanting to avoid constipation (EEK!), you're gonna want get to friendly with water.

It's the middle of summer now. How's that New Year's resolution coming? You know the one I'm talking about—the lose weight one. Well, water is a pretty painless way to help you with that goal, too. If you're wanting to lose some body clutter, you're gonna need to keep your water bottle handy. This was one of the crucial aspects for me in my weight loss. Drinking water was absolutely tops on my list and one of the reasons why I finally succeeded.

Here's the deal—you're a grown up now and it's time to stop rebelling and act like a big girl or boy. Remember, we're just talking about water here; I'm not asking you to bungee jump off a cliff or take up scuba diving with sharks.

Fact is, we don't drink enough water. But we do drink enough soda—just look at the soft drink size you can get at your nearest convenience store. A "Super Gulp" or whatever they're called in your neck of the woods holds 32 ounces of soft drink. Just think, you can drink a whole quart of cola and still be dehydrated!

And you will be, too. The only thing that will truly quench that thirst and hydrate your body is water. Water makes up nearly 70% of the human body. Almost every body function we have needs water. Water carries the good stuff in (nutrients) and it's water that takes the bad stuff out (poop). Water maintains body temperature and helps the circulatory system. Water is absolutely essential and yet, most people don't get enough. Instead of listening to our bodies, we turn a deaf ear and order another Super Gulp.

Are you ready to lose the soda habit and bring on the water? Your body is begging for water. As a baby step, why not try drinking a glass of water as a part of your morning routine? This will add one more glass of water to your quota for the day. Deliberately making sure you are hydrated will give you more energy, help you lose the body clutter and help your body function better. Drink up!
