BASEMENT NEWS

Once again it is time for change over, how time does fly.

With my house fire and Nancy's unexpected illness we wondered if this was going to happen.

But it did, with the help of Rose Broyles, Pastor Paul Burris and 17 other volunteers from the Solid Rock Church.

What an amazing group of people.

A lot of hard work and a lot of fun was had by all. Thank you.

Thanks to George DeWeese for use of a building for temporary storage.

Last but not least, thanks goes to Matthew and Joshua Pearman for their smiling faces and muscles in helping with the heavier work.

Thanks again to all.

Sherry Roop

P.S. Please stop dumping donations on the steps because they end up in the dumpster due to getting rained on and ruined.

GETTING SMARTER BEHIND THE WHEEL

from the American Counseling Association
 Automobiles today are safer and easier to drive than ever before. From seat belts to air bags to frames that help protect us in crashes, the family car is a much safer experience.

And yet, all that isn't helping much according to the latest statistics. The National Safety Council reports nearly 19,000 people died in motor vehicle accidents the first half of this year, an increase of 14% over last year and the highest total since 2007.

The experts say there are a number of reasons for this. Lower gas prices, for example, have people driving more, and a growing population means more drivers.

But studies say these are only partial answers and that the real causes are contributing factors we can control.

You probably already know what those factors are: speeding... distracted driving... driving while impaired... getting mad behind the wheel.

When a driver is affected by one or more of those issues, accidents are more likely to occur.

Imagine someone leaving a bar at night, driving quickly so his or her spouse won't get angrier, trying to call on the cell phone to explain that he or she is coming, and then getting mad because of some other driver's actions.

You, of course, would never do all those things together, but the reality is that even just one of these contributing factors will greatly increase your risk behind the wheel.

The sad reality is that too many of us are sometimes not completely in control of our lives. We promise ourselves not to text or phone while driving, but this one time it was "really important." We assure ourselves that the glass (or 2 or 3) of wine with dinner won't affect our reflexes on the drive home. We try not to get mad about all those idiots on the road or how late that traffic jam is going to make us, but we find ourselves boiling over anyway.

NEW REDI-MED

Lutheran Health Network officials today announced that RediMed will open a new, full-service urgent care clinic Sept. 21 in Bluffton, Ind.

"We are happy to provide nearby urgent care for Bluffton with a full-service RediMed right in town," said Matt Lehn, chief operating officer, RediMed. "Treating illness and non-emergent injuries in the evenings or on the weekends just got easier for Wells County residents. They no longer have to drive many miles away or go to the hospital for simpler health issues."

The new urgent care clinic is a 3,400-square-foot facility located in front of the local Wal-Mart at 1980 N. Main St. RediMed Bluffton hours of operation will be 8 a.m. to 8 p.m., Monday through Friday, and 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. on Saturdays and Sundays.

"Having RediMed expand its services here is a good thing," said Aaron Garofola, chief executive officer, Bluffton Regional Medical Center. "It expands access to the community since the only weekend medical care in Bluffton is the ER. It allows us to focus more on true emergencies in the ER, and it adds savings and convenience for patients."

"We're pleased that the new RediMed clinic created additional healthcare jobs because it helps meet the healthcare needs of our community," said City of Bluffton Mayor Ted Ellis. "We view this development as growth for the community as well as a potential benefit for attracting businesses to locate here."

Lehn expects on-site services to help strengthen efficiency in the delivery of urgent care and occupational medicine. "RediMed will be better positioned to serve patients having X-ray, lab and even audiology testing now that they are all available under the same roof," he said.

RediMed Bluffton will also provide patients easier access to other healthcare services within Bluffton Regional Medical Center and Lutheran Health Network through greater continuity of care as a result of technological upgrades including electronic medical record capabilities.

RediMed was established in 1984 to treat patients with illnesses or injuries that do not require a trip to the emergency room. All RediMed clinics are staffed by physicians and mid-level providers and offer X-ray, laboratory and prescription services on site with convenient locations and hours. Appointments are not necessary. Additional services offered at the clinics include fracture management, hydration management and foreign body removal.

Architecture and design services for the RediMed Bluffton project was handled by MKM architecture + design. The general contractor was locally-owned James S. Jackson Company.

For more information about RediMed, visit RediMedClinics.com.

WEAVER JOINS ISF

The Indiana State Fair Commission announced the naming of the Pop Weaver Youth Pavilion and the Cheri Daniels Arena to complete the naming rights for the newly renovated Indiana Farmers Coliseum complex. Pop Weaver entered into a ten year partnership built on a commitment to delivering a quality product and advancing agriculture. With these additions the entire Indiana Farmers Coliseum complex will be sponsored and supported by Indiana-based businesses and organizations that support agriculture.

"This exciting opportunity gives Pop Weaver a chance to engage with more than a million consumers and families for year-round programming, education and entertainment," said Mike Weaver, President and CEO, Weaver Popcorn Company, Inc. "The Pop Weaver Youth Pavilion will be a key venue that recognizes Cheri Daniels and her profound impact on the fairgrounds and further educates and grows the public's understanding of agriculture and the impact it has on all our lives."

As a part of the Indiana Farmers Coliseum complex the Pop Weaver Youth Pavilion was added during the $63 million renovation that began in the fall of 2012. In honor of Indiana's Former First Lady, Cheri Daniels, for her passion for the youth of Indiana and her commitment to the Indiana State Fairgrounds the Commission named the arena inside the Youth Pavilion the Cheri Daniels Arena. The venue has hosted nearly a million visitors since its completion in 2013 through public ice skating, livestock competitions and other events.

"During her time as Indiana's First Lady, Mrs. Daniels was one of the Indiana State Fair's biggest champions and rarely missed an opportunity to lend her efforts or support to the organization," said Cindy Hoye, Executive Director, Indiana State Fair Commission. "Being able to honor Mrs. Daniels' contributions and have yet another Indiana owned business rooted in agriculture support the Indiana Farmers Coliseum Campaign, makes this a very special day for all of us."

The Coliseum Campaign: Memories in the Making has currently raised $9.5 million and the Pop Weaver contribution gets the Indiana State Fair Foundation closer to its goal of raising $10 million. NAMED FINALIST Deb Daugherty has been named as a 2016 Indiana Teacher of the Year Top 10 Finalist.

Mrs. Daugherty taught 7th Grade Science at Riverview Middle School until the current school year when she became the Middle School Professional Development Coordinator.

Mrs. Daugherty was honored as the 2015 HCCSC Teacher of the Year making her eligible to compete at the state level. The next step for Deb will be an interview session with a committee consisting of previous Indiana Teacher of the Year recipients as well as other educational stakeholders.

"Children are not things to be 'molded', but PEOPLE to be

'unfolded' by learning who THEY are, helping them get to where THEY want to go, and challenging them to be innovative in EVERYTHING they do. Just the same, teachers need to be 'unfolded as well, so that they can share their gifts so that our schools can be living and breathing educational environments providing diversified experiences within our community" explained Mrs. Daugherty.

"One of the strongest traits Mrs. Daugherty possesses is her ability to connect with students. What comes shining through is the fact that she is genuine. She truly cares about each and every person as an individual. This concern is not just in the academic realm, but in every area of their lives", commented Riverview Principal Curt Crago.

For more information, please contact Deb Daugherty at the Horace Mann Education Center (260-356-8312).

BICENTENNIAL

Lee Hamilton and Becky Skillman

Indiana has seen abundant change since Dec. 11, 1816, when it was admitted as the 19th state in the union.

Back then, mountain lions roamed our thick forests and elk grazed our prairies. The majestic bison, so legendary among both Native Americans and European settlers, already was nearly gone, but a few still roamed Indiana's western edge.

Indiana's population in those days -- about 65,000 -- was roughly equal to that of modern Terre Haute. The capital was Corydon, having been moved from Vincennes in 1813.

Since becoming a state, Indiana has steadily advanced into the modern age, building legacies in health, medicine and technology; agriculture, business and industry; art, music and literature. Hoosiers have taken strides in civil rights and helped defend America's liberties both at home and abroad.

As the Bicentennial approaches, we celebrate all that history and more. We look forward with anticipation, purpose and collective determination at ways to leave a lasting legacy for our descendants. As co-chairs of the Indiana Bicentennial Commission, we want all Hoosiers to be engaged and all communities celebrated.

GROVER AND EDNA POULSON REUNION

In May 1654, the ancestors of Grover Poulson landed in American on the ship, Eagle. Anders Palsson Mullica was naturalized in 1663 as Andrew Poulson, and this is from whom we descended. The Poulsons migrated over the next two hundred years from the Delaware River area, to Maryland, to Ohio with our line settling in Miami County, Indiana in 1844.

Grover married Edna Rennaker in 1913. They had twelve children: Everett, Ralph, Margaret, Harold, Lois, and Bill who are deceased, and Freda, Jim, Mildred, Bob, Ruth, and Dan still living. Every five years

Dan hosts a large reunion with various activities, and provides food for the entire clan. This year the event was held on Sunday, August 30 at the home of Kent and Linda Poulson on Shafer Road near Warren. Of the 161 attending, we had family from Ohio, Virginia, Tennessee, Texas, and the winner of traveling the farthest was Barb Hull, Freda's daughter, from Florida.

This reunion was extra special. Dan presented his father's watch which had been purchased in the early 1900's to Jared Poulson, son of Ron and Rhonda Poulson, with the instructions to pass it on to another Poulson son. Also, we made Scott Nedberg an honorary member of our family. He is the pastor of the United Church of Christ in Warren where many family members attend, and he has presided over several funerals for our family. We truly feel he is one of us. Welcome, Pastor Scott.

Activities included a giant caterpillar to crawl through and a bouncer for the young children provided for by John Brooks, Ruth Brooks, Kristi and Don Williams. John Brooks provided the PA system. Kenneth Poulson drove his 1951 G John Deere tractor pulling an old wagon providing rides through the countryside. Dan modified the wagon by adding sides, benches, and a step to easily get on and off. Games included corn toss, croquet, and volleyball although we somehow didn't get around to playing. A big hit with the children was the balloon launch with tags attached in hopes that those who found one would let us know. So far, we have had five tags returned. Two, were from over one hundred miles away.

An American flag that had flown in Afghanistan blew in the breeze as Grace Dimond sang the National Anthem to open the reunion. This flag was given to John Brooks by Marine Staff Sergeant Josh Sleppy, an active military member of our family. Pastor Scott led us in prayer before a bountiful meal provided by Dan and his family. After the meal, we honored those who served in the military and had a Grover and Edna trivia quiz.

Ruth is our family historian, and she provided a memorabilia display of old family pictures. She also spent hours and hours dividing our previous records from one huge book to each of the twelve children having a record book of their specific family. We owe you Aunt Ruth.

A crew of 37 family and friends worked to make this day a success. Naming everybody who helped is not practical, but thanks to all who provided their time and energies. Special thanks to those for helping set up and tear down, to Ruth, John, and Jerry Brooks for all their contributions, to Amanda Seibold and Maureen Poulson for taking pictures, and to all the helpers preparing and taking care of the food.

Words cannot express our gratitude and appreciation to the family of Dan Poulson for all their time, effort, and expense in hosting this reunion. Mere thanks are not enough; here's a big hug for Uncle Dan!

Jared Poulson with the watch presented to him.

Governor Mike Pence and First Lady Karen Pence will join us when the Bicentennial year kicks off on Statehood Day -- Dec. 11, 2015. Across the state, citizens are creating unique ways to mark the occasion. The Bicentennial Commission has endorsed more than 500 projects fitting into one of four categories -- historical celebration; youth and education; community involvement; and nature conservation.

While these Bicentennial Legacy Projects overwhelmingly celebrate local communities, others promote a statewide perspective.

As approved by the Indiana General Assembly, a new state archives facility will provide much-needed protection and security for Indiana's historic documents and artifacts. Such cherished treasures as our original 1816 and 1851 state constitutions will be housed in accommodations built to modern standards and easily available to view.

Recognizing children are the future of Indiana and its communities, legislators also have approved the planned Statehouse Education and Welcome Center, to be housed in the Indiana State Library. The venue will provide the more than 40,000 students who visit each year with a place to learn about laws, government and the Statehouse.

Through the Bicentennial Nature Trust, we are conserving natural space across Indiana -- with 83 land acquisition projects completed since the Trust's 2012 inception. These projects represent more than 7,800 acres of recreational trails, parks and quiet spaces set aside for future generations to use and enjoy.

These investments in our future have been a long time in the making. It's fitting that we undertake them in conjunction with our Bicentennial.

This fall, we will release a commemorative book, "Indiana at 200: A Celebration of the Hoosier State." When we asked for photos depicting the essence of Indiana, Hoosiers submitted 6,300 in 30 days from every county in Indiana. That's a lot of Hoosier pride!

Next year, the Bicentennial Torch Relay will travel through all 92 Indiana counties – starting at Corydon and traveling approximately 2,300 miles over a five-week period before finishing at a new Bicentennial Plaza on the Statehouse grounds.

Recently, Lt. Gov. Sue Ellspermann announced another exciting statewide initiative – a "visioning project" in which Hoosier experts will discuss change and set sights for Indiana over the next 50 years in such areas as agriculture, education, business, civic engagement, philanthropy, arts and health.

First Lady Karen Pence, as our official ambassador, is traveling the state visiting Legacy Projects and helping get Hoosiers excited about contributing their own inventiveness and civic spirit to the celebration.

Wherever you live, getting involved is as easy as contacting a volunteer county coordinator. Our website, www.indiana2016.org, has a complete listing by county. Or, you can call (317) 234-8686 to get more information.

The Indiana Bicentennial Commission has shifted into high gear. We hope you will consider ways you and your community might celebrate the Bicentennial and, in doing so, create an even better future for Hoosiers.

Former U.S. Rep. Lee Hamilton and former Lt. Gov. Becky Skillman are co-chairs of the Indiana Commission.

Selections by the Choir will include, "Majesty", "Crown Him" and "We are Going to see the King"

Invite your family and friends to go with you. Refreshments will be served and there is no charge for admission.

CEMETERY WALK

The Wells County Genealogy Society, in cooperation with the Wells County Historical Society, will sponsor a cemetery walk on Sunday, October 4, 2015 at 2:00 p.m. at the Fairview Cemetery. The walk will be confined to Section A of the cemetery with outlying graves being marked with a flag.

This year's walk will be honoring 12 individuals and families. There will be representatives and re-enactors portraying these persons at each headstone marker, and some will be in costume. The committee has selected the following persons to highlight in the walk:

David Angel - first mayor of Bluffton - portrayed by Mayor Ted Ellis
John & Rebecca Studabaker - banking and railroads - portrayed by Dennis and Rebecca Behning

Dr C.T. Melsheimer - medical doctor - portrayed by Dr Marcello Gavilanex

Charles Grimes - WWI veteran - portrayed by George Keplinger

Mark your calendars, gather up your family and friends, and join us for a great day in the historic Fairview Cemetery, Sunday, October 4, 2:00 p.m.
