WHAT IS EASTER?

Easter is a celebration of the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.

No other religion worships a Living God who has the power over death!!

The penalty for sin (our rebellion against God & disobedience of God's Word) is death.

God became a man (this is why we celebrate CHRISTmas) so that He Himself could die to pay the penalty for my sin!!

Jesus Christ died on the cross for my sin (that is why we call it Good Friday), and when I believe in this Good News (the Gospel) and I accept His death upon the cross as the payment for the penalty of my sin, then, my sin is forgiven and I can have a right relationship with God.

If you would like to know more about how to have a personal relationship with the True God you may talk to me or one of your local pastors. your Pharmacist, Terry Daniels Warren Pharmacy 375-2135

As this years pageant is passed down to Kelly and Sarah Jones, we'd also like to thank Carly Brubaker and Kelly Gray for all they've done. We'd especially like to thank individual sponsors for making the pageant possible and allowing us the opportunity to represent an amazing town.

TRY MUSKIE FISHING

As the spring fishing season approaches, the DNR encourages Hoosier anglers to give Indiana muskie fishing a try.

"Indiana has some of the best muskie fishing in the Midwest," said Jed Pearson, a DNR fisheries biologist who manages the state's muskie program. "Lake Webster, the Barbee lakes and Lake Tippecanoe in northeast Indiana's Kosciusko County are especially good."

Local fishing guides are available for hire for anglers who do not have a boat or who want expert help to get started.

The lakes in Indiana's muskie program cover 2,700 surface acres, and many have been stocked each year for more than 20 years. According to Pearson, it's common for anglers to hook a muskie on every fishing trip. Long thought to be elusive, muskies bite on a variety of lures, many of which are typically used by bass anglers. Casting large plugs or trolling spoonbaits along submersed weed beds are the most productive methods.

Muskies have sharp teeth that easily cut regular fishing line. So, attach your lures to a steel leader to keep the fish from breaking away. A large landing net is handy to lift the fish and safely handle it.

The minimum size limit to keep a muskie in Indiana is 36 inches, but muskies taken at Lake Webster and the adjacent Backwater Area must be a minimum of 44 inches to keep. Even so, most muskie anglers release the fish they catch.

For first-time muskie fishing, Pearson suggests heading to Webster. It has the highest density of muskies. Other muskie lakes in northeast Indiana include Everett in Allen County, Loon in Whitley County, and Skinner in Noble County.

Another top muskie water is Bruce Lake, about 15 miles west of Rochester in Fulton County. Although smaller, at 245 acres, it too has a dense muskie population, with some fish measuring more than 50 inches long.

"Not as many anglers fish for muskies at Bruce Lake," Pearson said. "If more would try it, we think they'd be surprised."

Muskie fishing is also available in southern and central Indiana.

Top waters include Brookville Lake northwest of Cincinnati and Bass Lake near Sullivan.

Eagle Creek Reservoir in Indianapolis is also stocked with muskies, as are two pits southeast of Indianapolis and two near Evansville.

Use the fish stocking database at wildlife.IN.gov/5457.htm to search for muskie waters near you.

EARNs ACCREDITATION

The Lutheran Comprehensive Breast Center has been granted a three-year, full accreditation designation by the National Accreditation Program for Breast Centers - a program administered by the American College of Surgeons. This accreditation process challenges breast cancer centers to enhance the care they provide by addressing patient-centered needs and measuring quality against national standards. Lutheran is the first in the area to achieve the distinction.

Receiving care at NAPBC-accredited center ensures that a patient will have access to:

- * Comprehensive care, including a full range of state-of-the-art services

- * A multidisciplinary team approach to coordinate the best treatment options

Information about ongoing clinical trials and new treatment options

And, most importantly, * Quality breast care close to home.

"Being able to offer patients as many options as possible, specifically early access to clinical trials, is what sets our oncology services apart," said Rachael Hayes, MD, medical director, Lutheran Comprehensive Breast Center. "This is the highest level of accreditation a breast cancer program can receive. Earning validation from an independent source like the American College of Surgeons indicates we have all the pieces in place."

Accreditation by the NAPBC is only given to those centers that have voluntarily committed to provide the highest level of quality breast care and undergone a rigorous evaluation. During the survey process, centers must demonstrate compliance with standards established by the NAPBC for treating women who are diagnosed with the full spectrum of breast disease.

The standards include proficiency in the area of: center leadership, clinical management, research, community outreach, professional education, and quality improvement.

"Lutheran continues to focus on how the care it delivers can have the greatest impact on patients all across northeastern Indiana," said Paula Autry, chief executive officer, Lutheran Hospital. "The way members of our medical staff and employees on our oncology team collaborated to earn this important endorsement of what they do daily serves as a blueprint for many future endeavors."

A breast center that achieves NAPBC accreditation has demonstrated a firm commitment to offer its patients every significant advantage in their battle against breast disease.

TOP 10 REASONS YOU SHOULD SEND YOUR KID TO SUMMER CAMP

For most people, summer camp is just something they did for a couple of weeks as a kid but for many it was much more than that. As someone who has experienced summer camp as both a camper and a counselor, I can tell you that it will not only give the parents a rest but can also change a kid's life for the better.

Summer camp gave me the confidence to be a stay-at-home dad and to self-publish a book based on the games and activities that filled my summers. A website was created to promote the book but What To Do With The Kids is now a big part of my professional life and reaches people from around the world.

Summer camp was a great experience for me as a kid growing up in a government town and has created some life-long friends and memories. With that in mind, here are my top 10 reasons why you should send your kid to summer camp:

1. It gets them out of town

For kids living in a city, there aren't many parks and the parks that are there are not very big and are usually crowded. If you're lucky there's a swimming pool or splash pad nearby and for those living in a house, the backyard can get boring and if you live in a new house, chances are your backyard is the size of a postage stamp.

Kids in smaller towns can also get bored with the limited amount of activities available.

Most summer camps are located outside cities and surrounded by trees near lakes or rivers. The air is cleaner and the noise is all natural. It's a nice change for kids whose only exposure to wildlife is squirrels, pigeons and maybe the odd rat.

2. It gets them away from their family

Yes you love them, and the kids love you too and it may sound cruel but everyone can use a break at least once.

Being away from home can also give kids an appreciation of what they have.

3. It gives them a sense of independence

For most kids, this will be the first time they travel anywhere without their parents and that can be exciting for them. There will be rules to follow but it's different when mom and dad aren't around. They'll be with other kids and chances are the counselors are not that much older since they are most likely high school or college age, so it won't feel like they're at home with their parents. For many kids it's like being paroled from the routine of home and school.

4. It exposes them to different people

Most summer camps attract kids of different races, religions and economic standing from different parts of your city and even from different cities all together. It provides an opportunity to meet and discover other kids regardless of what their background is, what school they go to and where they're from.

5. They can be themselves

At school and with their friends, a lot of kids can feel the pressure of acting like everyone else but a good camp program lets kids be themselves. They can be who they are and the only acting they'll have to worry about is during the campfire skit!

6. They can learn new skills

The most important thing I ever learned at summer camp was to swim and that's a skill that every kid should learn. Learning to swim allowed me to learn other skills such as canoeing, a bit of sailing and how to keep safe near water.

The field sports program that I ran as a counselor introduced kids to sports that they may not have had a chance to learn at home such as volleyball, basketball, badminton and softball just to name a few. For many, it was the first time they ever got to play and learn about a different sport.

One of the more popular areas of a summer camp program is the crafts. Some camps still make the traditional key chain and bracelet but a lot of programs teach drawing, painting and sculpting that they may not get to try at home or would want to admit to be interested in to their friends. For a lot of kids, it's a chance to discover their artistic abilities.

7. Learn life skills

Life skills are something that many kids learn without realizing it. Simple daily procedures such as cleaning their cabin or tent, making their bed, setting the dining table for a meal and cleaning up afterwards are habits that can carry on after they leave camp.

The kids will learn teamwork and cooperation since they'll be participating in a group or as "a cabin."

The "all for one and one for all" philosophy works wonders at summer camp and can help make your kids become more confident and out-going.

They may also pick up a few good habits as well. A number of parents have told me that their kids would start helping to clear the table after meals and make their beds, at least for a little while.

8. It gets them active

Summer camp is filled with activities that involve running, swimming, hiking and of course playing. There are also times in the day where kids can just relax but the sign of a good camp experience is when the kids are tired but happy at the end of the day.

9. Everything is low tech

The majority of summer camps have a "no electronics" policy that may be harsh for some kids but is a great way to help them realize that they can live without it for a little while. If the kids ask, tell them that all camp activities are in "real-time" and are "interactive." There is no "delete" or "return" button so they may have to try doing something again and again.

Announcements are made in the dining hall live and in person. There are no texts, emails or Snapchats so messages are passed on to each other by actually speaking to another person.

The only hi-tech item they should have is a flashlight.

10. It creates memories

As a camper and as a counselor, I learned a lot of new skills and a lot about myself and others at summer camp. There are people that I can picture exactly how they looked over 30 years ago and moments that have helped make me who I am today.

It's great to meet up with old friends and a real treat to be recognized by a former camper who can recall a fun moment so many years ago. It's also quite special when these campers are now adults, speak fondly of their time at camp and a gives me a great feeling of knowing that I was a part of it.

There are a lot of private camps and camps that are operated by churches or non-profit groups who can help you send your kids regardless of your financial situation. As a camper, my fees were subsidized so my parents could afford to send me but when I was up there, I was just one of the kids.

Specialty camps are very popular and day camps in the city are fun but getting out of town and going to a traditional summer camp is an experience that every kid should have once.

They may not come back with all their socks and towels but they will have memories that can last a lifetime.

Brian Presley is a former camper, counselor and program director at Camp Minwassin located near Eganville, Ontario. He is also a semi-retired stay-at-home dad and the owner of whattodowiththekids.com, the website that adults go to when they want to know what to do with the kids. CALL YOUR FRIENDS OFTEN THEY'RE THINKING ABOUT YOU

Do you frequently have a friend or family member whom you love, come into your mind and you think, 'I should call so-in-so' and then you don't, but then the loved one calls you? It'd be good to call your friends often because chances are if you're thinking of them, they're thinking of you.

The other day I'd been thinking about Bernice, my friend in Fresno and because we hadn't talked in several years I was sort of worried that maybe she was dead (you have to start thinking that way when your friends get old and Bernice is 84). She and I were friends from the church we were members of, and we remained friends after I moved to Washington 42 years ago.

I'd been thinking about her for several days and had promised myself I'd call her before the day was over. Bernice is one of those senior citizens who hasn't even dipped her toe into the 21st century as far as cell phones, Facebook, Google and such are concerned. I've tried to talk her into getting a smart phone or a computer but it was always like trying to talk a slug into running.

So back to the day when I talked to her; the phone rang and it went like this.

Ring, ring, ring?

"Hello?"

"Hi Pam this is Bernice."

"Oh, my goodness! I've been thinking about you and honest I was going to call you today! It's sooo good to hear your voice!!!! HOW ARE YOU?!!!!!" (I was so delighted to hear her voice my energy level was up there as if she'd been raised from the dead.)

"I'm fine, how are you?" Bernice asked.

"Oh I'm fine, God I miss you! I love you so much, I hope you know!"

"Uh, thank you, I love you too (she seemed rather stilted in her response), uh, I just called to tell you that I can't get off the farm, because of the snow up here in the hills."

"Snow?"

"Yeah do you have snow down there?"

Okay, this was getting weird! Was Bernice losing it? For one thing it's rare for it to snow in Fresno and Bernice doesn't live on a farm or up in the hills. She lives in Fresno where it's as flat as a ballet dancer's chest.

"Um, we got a little dusting today, but it's not sticking." I answered.

"Oh good, if it's not snowing down on the flats, I can probably get your eggs to you tomorrow."

"My eggs to me tomorrow? Oh dear, I thought you were my dear friend in California! You sound just like her and her name is Bernice too!"

We both started laughing as we thought back over our conversation. I apologized about my effusive behavior and she laughed and said she really enjoyed the love that poured all over her through the phone lines. We've never met, she leaves my eggs at Billy Jo's beauty shop, Billy Jo calls me and I pick them up.

It got me to thinking, what if we were excited to see anyone just because they're alive? When the UPS guy drops off a package and you run out and get it, what if you greeted him as if you loved him, not as a lover, just as a fellow human being who is bringing you a package. "HI, THANK YOU! I'M SO GLAD YOU CAME AND BROUGHT ME THIS PACKAGE! I LOVE YOUR UNIFORM AND YOU KEEP YOUR TRUCK SO CLEAN! TAKE CARE!! HAVE A GREAT DAY!"

It wouldn't take long and we'd be tagged as nuts, but we sure could be a little perkier when we deal with people and with our family members. For all we know, it could be the last time we see them.

When I went into Billy Jo's to pick up my eggs, she started giggling about Bernice. She said,

"Bernice told me all about your conversation! She said it was a little disconcerting, but enjoyable at the same time." Of course I had to re-enact the conversation and I had the whole beauty shop in stitches.

P.S. I called "my" Bernice as soon as I hung up from "egg" Bernice and we had a glorious time catching up on each other's lives! Bernice knows me well and knows how passionate I can get with my love of my friends and she howled when I told her about "egg" Bernice!
